The terminal disclaimer has been entered into the application.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 and 16-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Krochta (6,869,628) for reasons of record.

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art only under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) might be overcome by: (1) a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not an invention "by another"; (2) a showing of a date of invention for the claimed subject matter of the application which corresponds to subject matter disclosed but not claimed in the reference, prior to the effective U.S. filing date of the reference under 37 CFR 1.131; or (3) an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.130 stating that the application and reference are currently owned by the same party and that the inventor named in the application is the prior inventor under 35 U.S.C. 104, together with a terminal disclaimer in accordance with 37 CFR 1.321(c). This rejection might also be overcome by showing that the reference is disqualified under 35 U.S.C. 103(c) as prior art in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a). See MPEP § 706.02(l)(1) and § 706.02(l)(2).

Applicants' statements have been considered but do not overcome the rejection because the statement must specify common ownership "at the time of applicants' invention".

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2 and 6-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by McCabe (6,830,766) for reasons of record used in rejecting claims 1-10, 14-22, 25, 28-39, 43-49 and 51-54).

Applicant argues that McCabe uses glycerin as a plasticizer. This has been considered but is not persuasive. The claims call for a polyhydric alcohol as a plasticizer. McCabe uses maltitol in his coating. The fact that McCabe may use a different plasticizer does not alter the fact that the ingredients of the claims are fully disclosed by McCabe. Applicants' arguments relating to the extent of gloss in the product does not overcome the rejection because the gloss appears to be an optional feature in the claims.

Claims 1-9, 16, 17, 20,, 21, 22, 24-31, 35-37, 39-44, 47-49 and 51-54 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over McCabe (6,830,766) for reasons of record.

Applicant argues that McCabe uses glycerin as a plasticizer. This has been considered but is not persuasive. The claims call for a polyhydric alcohol as a plasticizer. McCabe uses maltitol in his coating. The fact that McCabe may use a different plasticizer does not alter the fact that the ingredients of the claims are fully disclosed by McCabe. Applicants' arguments relating to the extent of gloss in the product does not overcome the rejection because the gloss appears to be an optional feature in the claims.

Applicant argues that McCabe is not glossy. This has been considered but is not persuasive. McCabe also adds lipid to his coating. Upon comparing the claimed product with McCabe, one of ordinary skill in the art would expect the McCabe coating to have gloss because it contains the same ingredients as those in the claims. Applicant argues that one would not expect to coat nuts with the coating of the claims. The rejection claims do not contain nuts.

Claims 1-9, 16-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Best (2005/0118311).

Best discloses reduced fat flavored coating made from a combination of sugar and hydrocolloid. The hydrocolloid may include protein as a selected hydrocolloid (paragraph 008). The sugar may include disaccharide, sucrose or a polyhydric alcohol (paragraph 009). In examples 9 and 10, cocoa is included and the cocoa is regarded to be the source of cocoa butter in the product. Contrary to applicants arguments, the product is disclosed as providing a glossy coating at the end of paragraph 008. The claims appear to differ from Best in the recitation of an example in the reference of a coating that contains the specific protein ingredients of the claims. But where Best teaches that both whey protein isolate and soy protein isolate are hydrocolloid ingredients useful for preparing a glossy coating, it would have been obvious to select these ingredients for coating composition when albumin is not available. No unobvious difference is seen between the gloss in Best and the high gloss of the claims. The extent of gloss in a product is seen to be a subjective evaluation that is not alone seen to constitute unobviousness. It is appreciated that WPC is not mentioned but no unobvious or unexpected result is seen from the selection of WPC and whey protein isolate because they both are formed from whey proteins.

The rejection of the claims over Cook (5,705,207) has been withdrawn for the reasons argued by applicant.
